

Free Seminar on Building a Resilient Organisation

Why do some individual and organisations seem to bounce back in times of adversity while others seem to struggle endlessly?

Resilience is something that all organisations and their employees must face in the current economic climate. It is an issue that has gained special urgency in today's unstable world environment, finding its way onto the list of qualities sought in employees and graduates.

The Centre for Executive Education at Bond University would like to invite you to a free workshop on Building a Resilient Organisation.

What will you get from this event:

- Strategies associated with building personal and organisational resilience
- An understanding of how organisations and their people can become more creative and agile, not only in response to the Global Financial Crisis, but in the face of ongoing change and ambiguity that increasingly characterises modern life
- Practical examples and theoretical perspectives

Presenters

Professor Ken Parry

Ken is a Professor of Leadership and Director of the Centre for Leadership Studies at Bond University.

Cameron Wyatt

Cameron is co-founder of Synergy Training, a Brisbane-based training and development organisation.

LOCATION AND SCHEDULE

Tuesday 28th April 2009

5.00pm-6.00pm – Networking and refreshments

6.00pm-8.00pm – Seminar

Brisbane Polo Club

The Earl of Inchcape Room

Level 2, 1 Eagle St

Brisbane Qld 4000

REGISTER TODAY LIMITED SEATS AVAILABLE!

For further information please contact the Centre for Executive Education by phone on 1800 220 144 or by email cee@bond.edu.au